

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE historical documents, which have been in the care of the Dean and Chapter of Worcester since the Dissolution of the monastery, are numerous and varied. Those charters and letters which possess obvious historical interest have been, for the most part, long ago published by antiquaries and historians. But there remain many documents, still unread, which may be of use to students of mediæval and monastic history, and may possess a wider interest. I do not possess the knowledge requisite to trace the past history of these documents, or to indicate the various volumes in which those which have been published may be read. That must be done by some one else. The object of this preface is only to put on record some account of what has recently happened to them, and to state what is their present condition.

In the fourteenth Report, Appendix, Part VIII., of the Historical Documents Commission, 1895, Mr. Reginald Lane Poole has given the following outline:—"The Records of the Prior and Convent," he writes, "and of their successors the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of St. Mary, Worcester, are preserved in a room adjoining the Bishop's Registry in the Gateway Tower, to which they were removed in recent years from the long chamber over the south aisle of the nave of the Church, where is now the Cathedral Library. The muniments have in past time suffered considerably from damp and the ravages of mice. At present there is no danger of damp since fires are constantly kept in two or three of the adjoining rooms, and both in January and in April I have found the documents in a satisfactorily dry condition." Mr. Poole notes, however, that the shelves are not high enough for the books to stand upright, and that the charters require to be laid out flat, and numbered, and so arranged that any one can easily be found.

As to the place from which the documents were removed to the Gateway or 'Edgar' Tower, it seems to me possible that Mr. Poole misunderstood the information given him. It is a small matter, but not without interest. In the triforium over the south aisle of the nave of the Cathedral there are, and must always have been, two rooms, separated by a stone wall. One is over the two western bays; the other, higher by five steps, over the seven eastern bays of the south aisle. The former of these two rooms is the antechamber to the latter; and the latter is 'the long chamber where is now the Cathedral library.' The spiral staircase by which the library is approached leads up the south-western turret of the aisle into the antechamber; and another spiral staircase leads up the south-western turret of the nave from the antechamber into the clerestory, and thence to the roof of the nave. It was, I think, in the short antechamber, not in the long chamber or library, or possibly in one of the compartments into which the long chamber was then divided, that the documents were housed in those recent years to which Mr. Poole refers.

For, in the first place, Alderman Noake, writing in 1866 (Monastery and Cathedral of Worcester, p. 410), says explicitly that he consulted the documents "in the triforium over the two western bays of the south side of the nave."

And, in the next place, a former member of the Cathedral choir school, now a respected clergyman in the diocese, lately told me how, at about this date, he and another choir-boy used to get into the Cathedral by night, while some repairs were going on. He pointed out to me a window in the west staircase of the north aisle of the nave by which at that time it was possible to enter. On one occasion they went up to the roof of the nave, crossed the vaulting, and descended, by the staircase I have mentioned, into the southern triforium, and there, in the small antechamber, they found themselves among the documents. He selected a stout and large one, as suitable for a drum, and carried it off. But it was unfortunately discovered by the Headmaster, who ascertained that it had come from the muniment room, and ordered him to replace it. The Headmaster does not seem to have enquired how the muniment room was entered, nor whether his orders to replace the document were carried out.

These two testimonies are, I think, conclusive that in the middle of the nineteenth century the documents were stored, at any rate in part, in the antechamber to the library, over the two western bays of the south aisle.

It may be possible to go back one step farther in their history. In 1827 a chapter order was made that "The chapter records and documents now kept in the muniment room be divided, and all which are not necessary for immediate reference to be placed in the new muniment room, and the latter to be transferred to the lower presses of the Chapter Library, with new keys in triplicate for the Dean, the Receiver, and the Treasurer."

If this was carried out it seems probable that the 'new muniment room' here spoken of is identical with the antechamber to the library; but there is nothing to shew what room is referred to as 'the muniment room' in which up to that date the documents were kept.

The collection of documents has suffered not only from damp, and the indiscriminate destruction by mice, beetles, and choir-boys, but even more severely by the discerning selection by antiquaries, collectors and other visitors, who appear to have had, at certain periods, easy access to the documents. For example, of the 420 charters and indentures catalogued with great care by Dr. Peter Prattinton in 1824, about 70 are now missing, as I am informed by the Rev. J. Harvey Bloom; and several of the ancient charters, referred to by historians as in our collection, are no longer to be found. Mr. R. L. Poole wrote to me on 20 May, 1907:—"The collection has indeed suffered more than most in the last two centuries. At one time it was perhaps unequalled in its store of Anglo-Saxon and Norman Charters: witness Wanley's list in Hickeys' Thesaurus. But I suspect that former Deans and Prebendaries must have been unduly generous in presenting them to their friends. It is clear that the first Lord Somers became possessed of a good many of them; and some seem to have passed into the hands of William Lambard. But no small loss has occurred within living memory. When I was working in the 'Edgar' Tower I met an old man who had formerly been a clerk in the registry. He told me of a box full of Anglo-Saxon Charters which he remembered to have been destroyed by rain coming in from the roof."

In the autumn of 1906 I looked at some of the documents in the drawers and shelves and boxes, both in the small room adjoining the Bishop's Registry and in the turret approached by step-ladder from it, and found that they were suffering from dirt as well as from the want of room and absence of arrangement described by Mr. Poole; and with the advice of Mr. Charles Sayle, of the Cambridge University Library, who was then staying with me, I formed an outline of a plan for dealing with them. In November of that year the Chapter adopted the plan, and gave me permission to remove them to my house for cleaning and smoothing and for preliminary classification, with a view to final removal to boxes in properly constructed cases to be placed in our Cathedral library, and authorised the subsequent preparation of a catalogue by some competent person.

Our chapter clerk, Mr. J. H. Hooper, who has long been interested in these documents, and, as Deputy Steward of the Manors which passed in 1859 into the hands of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, has also the care of the Manor and Court rolls, kindly gave me every facility for the removal; and also allowed the Manor and Court rolls to be sent with the rest, for examination and cataloguing. These will remain in the library, in the possession of the Dean and Chapter, but under the custody of the chapter clerk.

The number of documents proved to be far greater than any one had anticipated, and the cleaning, pressing, and sorting of them occupied me during the first three months of 1907. In April, in pursuance of the permission granted me by the Dean and Chapter, I asked the Rev. J. Harvey Bloom, M.A., Vicar of Whitchurch, Stratford-on-Avon, who had done similar work elsewhere, to come and take entire charge of the work of preparing a Catalogue of the whole collection; the Chapter having made a grant to meet the necessary expense. He discharged the work with great promptness; and the documents are now classified under the heads shewn in the next paragraph; arranged in each class, numbered, and an abstract made of each; stamped as belonging to the Dean and Chapter; and placed in 120 cardboard boxes, similar to those used in the British Museum. Catalogues are made of each class, so that any document can be at once found. These catalogues will of course need careful revision, and then it is hoped will be indexed and published.

The classes are as follows :—

- A. The volumes of MS. arranged and numbered to correspond with Mr. Poole's numbers in the Report referred to (pp. 165—184). So far as they go, all of these are in the cases, with the exception of the volume marked XV. Of these there are 213.
- B. Charters and indentures, &c., numbering more than 1,800.
- C. Rolls and Accounts of the officers of the Convent and the bailiffs of their estates. Of these there are more than 900, of which about 500 belong to the former class.
- D. Correspondence.
- E. Manor and Court rolls.
- F. Documents which appear to belong to the Bishop rather than to the Chapter, or refer to other dioceses than Worcester.
- G. Fragments.

These documents are referred to by the letter giving the class, and the number of the particular document.

During the process of cleaning and sorting the documents, and afterwards availing myself occasionally of Mr. Bloom's kind assistance, I became able to read some of them, and thought that the publication of some of the Compotus rolls, in Class C, would be of value to historical students, as an illustration of what our collection contains. The documents are far too numerous to be all printed; and I finally selected for various reasons the accounts for the year 13-14 Henry VIII. [1521-2], which are on paper, and fastened together as a volume—A xvii. in the catalogue. I subsequently discovered that these accounts exist in roll form in C. 106. The transcription of the accounts of the obedientiaries, or the officials of the monastery, for that year forms the nucleus of the paper that follows.

I am fortunate enough to be able to publish along with this a corresponding portion of Mr. Bloom's catalogue of our MSS. The portion now published is that part of Class C, about half, which contains the accounts of the obedientiaries. This will shew to all students what we possess of such records. The Catalogue was made in April and May, 1907, by Mr. Bloom, and was carefully revised by Mr. S. G. Hamilton, M.A., Librarian of Hertford College, Oxford, in the autumn of the same year. It will be remembered that Mr. Hamilton, in co-operation with Mr. Floyer, prepared the Catalogue of the MS. books still remaining in the Cathedral library, which formed part of the library of the monastery.

It is scarcely necessary to add that these documents are published with the sanction of the Dean and Chapter.

presumption that these rolls do not properly belong to Worcester.

In the annual accounts, the year runs, as a rule, from Michaelmas to Michaelmas.

<sup>1</sup> This is the form of the word in the earlier rolls. By the reign of Hen. VIII. it had become Pitanciarus. (without a numeral), and are therefore placed under Edw. I.

<sup>2</sup> These two very short accounts (scarcely long enough to form rolls) would seem to belong to a hermit's cell attached to the Priory.

<sup>3</sup> These two rolls should perhaps be referred to the corresponding years of Edw. III.: cf. C. 112. They are, however, dated by the years 'regis Edwardi'

The rolls of Prior More are different in form from those of his predecessors. They contain the accounts for the year of all the officials, and exhibit a complete conspectus of the receipts and expenditure of the Convent. This is doubtless the reason why so few separate accounts of officials during the reign of Henry VIII. are preserved.

Apparently a Cellarer's Roll, it is complete, except that the heading is unfortunately torn off. It contains an interesting list of presents (casks of wine, salmon, &c.), given to royal and noble personages.

THESE introductory remarks are intended simply to bring out into clearer light the facts mentioned in the documents themselves. I do not possess the requisite knowledge for comparing them with the similar documents of other convents or other periods. That must be left to antiquaries and historians of far wider knowledge than I possess; and I hope that this small contribution of materials may be of some interest and service. The documents suggest many questions to which I am able to give no answer.

The accounts here printed are the annual abstracts for the year mentioned, A.D. 1521-2, presented by the officials, or some of the officials, of the Benedictine Monastery of Worcester, at the annual audit held shortly after Michaelmas. These officials are the Prior, the Cellerarius, the Subcellerarius, the Eleemosinarius, the Magister Capellæ, the Camerarius, the Pitansarius, the Precentor, the Tumbarius, the Hostillarius, the Magister Communis Cenæ, the Refectoriarius, the Infirmarius, the Coquinarius, and the Sacrista. The total of the sums that pass through their hands in the year is £1,352 19s. 8½d. corresponding to about £14,000 or £15,000 of our money. Part of this, however, is counted twice over, as paid by one official to another. From other sources it is learnt that the net income of the monastery at the Dissolution was £1,290 10s. 6½d.<sup>1</sup>

These accounts were in general submitted to the prior and auditor; but some suspicion had recently arisen as to the accounts; for in Prior More's Journal it is stated that in the year A.D. 1521-2, to which these accounts belong, the Sacrist was bound on oath to submit his accounts to the Bishop or his deputy, and not to the Prior.

It is, perhaps, worth recalling that this was an eventful year in the history of the monastery, though no traces of the events occur in the accounts. In the year A.D. 1521, Sylvester Giglis, Bishop of Worcester, died at Rome; and the bull of Leo condemning Luther was delivered to the prior, sede vacante. In July, A.D. 1521, the prior and convent returned a submissive answer, and Noake tells us<sup>1</sup> that the populace of Worcester, to manifest their sympathy with the cause of the Reformation, defaced the high cross before the Guildhall.

The great majority of the accounts of the monastery that still exist are written on parchment, the skins being sewn together end-wise so as to form a long strip, and then rolled up and tied. They are often written on both sides. But it happens that the accounts for four consecutive years, not all of them complete, are written on paper, as was the custom after the dissolution of the monastery, and are in the form of a volume. Its nature can be judged from the facsimile of p. 133 of the manuscript, printed opposite p. 26<sup>2</sup>. It is the second of these four years that I have selected for transcription.

The volume also contains the accounts of the bailiffs and collectors of some of the manors for the same years. The total of their accounts in the first of these years, prior to deductions, is £704 13s. 3½d., and the net total is considerably less. It is plain, therefore, that this volume does not give a complete account of the revenues of the priory.

"The contents of the volume, of which some leaves have been misplaced in binding, are as follows:—

pp. 1—43.	12-13 Hen. VIII.	Accounts of bailiffs, &c.
„ 44—69.	„ „	Accounts of all officials, except Coquinarius and Sacrista .

Road, Worcester, and leave nothing to be desired.

"The disarrangement of leaves made it at first appear that the accounts of officials were more incomplete than they are. The absence of the Sacrist's accounts in the first two years is probably not accidental, nor due to the loss of a couple of leaves, as might be conjectured for the second year. It must be considered in connexion with the statement as to these accounts in the Prior's Journal. The absence of the accounts of the coquinarius in the first year is not due to the loss of leaves: for the Infirmarius's accounts end on p. 69, and the verso (p. 70) contains the commencement of the Bailiff's accounts for the second year." These two paragraphs are extracted from a letter written to me by the Dean of Westminster.

The accounts of a single year may be taken as fairly representative of the period; a large proportion of the items in any one year being identical with items in the years before and after; but in order to give a more comprehensive view of the accounts of the period I have in this introduction noted occasionally some of the items occurring in the abstracts of other years which are not represented in that of the year selected.

Before proceeding to the examination of these abstracts it may be well to say a few words on the accounts of which they are the abstracts. For besides these abstracts there were the detailed accounts of the bailiffs and rent collectors of the different manors to which I have referred; a specimen of these is given in Appendix I. There were also the detailed accounts of the officials of the monastery, as to their expenditure: and these are constantly referred to in the abstracts—parcelle particulariter plenius liquent—parcelle plenius liquent per jornale suum—ut patet per rentale—per indenturas—ut patet per tallium—per jornale coram domino priore et auditore debite examinatum. The nature of these detailed accounts of expenditure can be inferred from Prior More's journal, which gives his weekly accounts for many years, and appears from his abstract to have been in some form submitted to audit. A specimen page of this is given in facsimile in Appendix III., p. 47. A facsimile is also given at p. 54 of a portion of the roll of a coquinarius, which supplies the menu, and the cost of the dinner, for every day in the year. There were also the detailed accounts of the receipts of each official, giving the rents of lands and tenements actually paid terminis sanctorum Michaelis, Andree, Annunciationis et sancti Johannis Baptiste. C. 200 (b) is a good specimen of such an account of the elemosinarius. Two or three lines from it may be given as an illustration :—

Ex tenemento uno scilicet sexto a porta in Sudbury Strete sinistra parte ex opposito tenementi Henrici Brun- fords per annum ad terminos usuales videlicet.	}	2s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 6d.

Ex tenemento quondam Rusby, quondam Thomæ Carter, et modo William Wybbe tenet per annum ad terminos usuales.	}	5d., 5d., 5d., 5d.

The former of these two entries shows that houses in streets were not yet numbered, and the latter entry may interest some of the great family of Webbs, who still live in Worcester. It shows how regularly one of their possible ancestors paid his modest quarterly rent.

The length and apparent complexity of the abstracts of the accounts of the monastery arises in part from the fact that the manors and farms were given or assigned to certain offices in the convent, and not to the convent as a whole. Each of the officers has, therefore, his own estates and revenues and officials, and holds his own curia or court, and pays his own contribution to the Order of 1*d.* per mark. The elemosinarius, for example, rides out to Icome with his seneschal to hold a curia as lord of the manor. Some of our documents are the records of such courts. Then further, each of the manors, though held by one official, was subject to certain charges upon it payable to other persons. The second item in the prior's receipts—percipit de cellerario pro secunda vestura de Dydeley per annum . . . 6s. 8d.—is of this nature. The home estate, 'Wigorn,' is appropriated in part to the cellerarius. He receives rents of tenements and lands in civitate Wigorn. et suburbiis [pp. 1, 70, 149, 217]<sup>1</sup>, and the rents of some farms, among them 40*s.* pro secunda vestura—the aftermath—de Dydeley (? Diglis). But he has to pay to the Bishop a quit rent "duorum tenementorum de novo edificatorum juxta 'le Cardynalls Hatte' quondam vocatum Holdefords Inne," [p. 1], and a quit rent 12*d.* for a tenement in Broad Street. He pays to the precentor a rent of

26s. 8d. for a tenement in Newport : to the Bishop pro via habenda—a right of road—in Dudeley 12d., and, as has been said, to the prior, pro secunda vestura de Dydeley, 6s. 8d.

The variations from year to year in the receipts arise partly from fines on renewal of rents. Thus [p. 261] the cellerarius enters—de fine Ricardi Chylde pro Myldenham's Mylle hoc anno—£20. There are also variable 'heriotts'; for example in 18 Henry VIII. the Elemosinarius reports at his curia the death of Henry Staunton, and the payment by his widow of a heriott videlicet optimum animal bovem coloris rubii pretii 12s., on the payment of which amount ipsa fecit fidelitatem et admissa est tenens. The sale of wood, cattle, salt, coal, building materials, &c., is also variable. The rents of houses are also a varying item. Some houses are reported as indecassa, or indecata, which seems to mean out of repair (decasus). In some cases the tenant negat solvere; in others recessit cum redditu or redditu non soluto; in others redditus detinetur. Sometimes there is no rent, quia tenementum vacuum jacet. In addition to rents paid in money, presents or tribute were sent from the manors. For example, on fol. 51 of the Prior's 'Jornale' is a note that during the year he had received 120 pairs of pigeons from Crowle, 44 pairs from the Priory Cote, 100 couple of conies from Henwick, 25 couple from Batnall, and 14 from Hallow.

The abstracts of the receipts of each official are rendered in a nearly identical form, as will be seen by reference to the printed specimens that follow. The main item in the receipts is the net total of the rents received through bailiffs and collectors of certain lands, farms and tenements, and of the pensions or payments from certain Churches. A detailed account of these has previously been submitted to the auditor. To this main item are added small fixed payments which come mainly through other officials of the monastery, and variable items often of considerable interest, such as legacies, and offerings by pilgrims in money and wax. The last of these, as will be seen by reference to the Sacrist's accounts, amounted in value to £49 9s. 11d.

The abstracts of the expenditure are more varied. In general we have first the redditus resoluti, fixed charges on the rents, due to outsiders. In some cases there follow the decassorum redditus, allowances for rents not received; stipendia monachorum, payments made to the officers, members and servants of the convent: feoda et vadia, payments made to officials who are not monks by way of salaries or gratuities; corodia, or allowances; solutiones necessarie, payments for repairs of tenements, for the repair of the chancel of the church in his manor, and for repair of bridges, for articles used in the office, and the fee to the professional accountant for making the abstract—pro factura presentis compoti; then follow items for hospitality, and for the special duties of his office, and for the furniture of his chamber or camera, and finally for sundries impossible to classify.

A few remarks may now be made on the accounts of each officer in order; and first of the Prior, or the Lord Prior, as he was now styled.

In addition to these abstracts there exists in our collection a journal of William More, the last prior but one, giving his daily and weekly expenditure from A.D. 1518—1535.

This journal has never been published in extenso, but it has been often quoted and referred to: it is full of interest, but in this introduction I do not propose to make more than a very few quotations from it. It contains 157 folios.

The prior's total receipts in the year selected were £248 3s. 8d., of which £237 12s. 2½d. comes from rents and pensions. Among the few variable items in his receipts are such as these [p. 255], de elemosinario pro bona cujusdam felonis apud Icombe 3s. 4d. [p. 191], *de relevio*² Margarete Alflete de Bonhamstede, 12d.

His expenditure was on a large scale; he had several manor-houses in which he used periodically to reside; he had a large retinue of gentlemen and servants in attendance; he entertained magnates and gave liberal presents. An entry in the year A.D. 1524 runs: in expensis et regardis datis domino episcopo et famulis suis existentibus apud monasterium nostrum hoc anno £7 3s. 4d. A visit to London cost him £23 12s. 4d. There were gifts to the King in that year of £9 13s. 4d., and to the Cardinal of 60s. The last roll preserved of the priorate of William More is dated 25-26 Henry VIII. [A.D. 1533-4], and the last item named in his expenditure is solutum was given me by Father Gabriel, the learned librarian of the Benedictine monastery of Einsiedeln, to whom, in Sep. 1907, I shewed this manuscript.

magistro Thome Cromewell pro feodo suo per annum, 53s. 4d. In Appendix II. we see how largely he would spend, and incur debt, for a new mitre and pastoral staff: and in other years we see proofs of his expenditure on his manor-houses. The following extracts are illustrative:—

[p. 256.] Et computat solutum pro diversis utencilis et aliis rebus necessariis emptis videlicet pro hangings de Say lectis sterniis tam ad cameram domini prioris apud Wigorn. quam apud manerium de Crowle hoc anno £12 os. Od. Et computat solutum domino regi sibi concessum per clerum in favorem et auxilium officii cellerarii hoc anno, £20 os. Od. Item solutum est Johanni ffowlys et aliis carpinteriis laborantibus pro nova edificacione manerii nostri de Crowle in favorem et auxilium cellerarii hoc anno, £18 15s. 1d. In the following year (C. 414) we read: pro canvas empto pro picturis camere, 6os. 4d. Item solutum pro uno lapide mormorio cum apparatu ejusdem empto apud London vocato a buryle stone, £10 os. Od.

I will give one quotation from the Prior's Journal for this year. "Mem. that I have bourth to lend to my lorde Cardinall towards his "jorney to Calys for to treate of peese bytwene the frenche king "and the emp<sup>r</sup>, 6 horses, the price of them £40 4s. Od. Item pay<sup>d</sup> "for 6 saddulls, brydulls, and the harnes to the same with 6 letherne "halters for them 46s. 10d."

Nothing but a transcription of his journal, however, or a full analysis of its contents, can give an adequate idea of his varied expenditure and interests.

The cellerarius has a large income, amounting in this year to £455 15s. 10½d. The item from fines, &c., varies considerably: the average of 5 years being £65 13s. Od., whereas in the year selected it is only £45 10s. 2d. No details are given as to his expenditure in these abstracts. It is simply stated as pro omnibus expensis et allocationibus.

We may, however, infer from a roll of the cellerarius of 11-12 Henry VII. (C. 105) that at that time he drew his income from 29 manors, besides profits from wool and beer; and that his outgoings were classed under many heads—Redditus resoluti; pensiones perpetue (such as the payments to chaplains at Grimley, Tedynton and Alston, and to the rector of Himbleton); fees to lay officials; cost of visits of the King's Judges of Assize; purchase for the convent of extra beer and bread; of corn, malt, and barley; repair of pipes that bring water, of the Gestenhall, of the cloister, of pavements in the city, of the aula Hostillarii, et aliarum domorum infra monasterium; the purchase of firewood, eggs, butter, cheese, milk; of oats and mustard; cost of shoeing his horses and those of the prior; salaries of brewers and bakers and barbers and millers and valets and others; among them to two 'ffere beters,' a palfridarius, and uni garcioni coquino; cost of a new antiphon; expenses of the prince, and a gift to the king.

He acted, in fact, as treasurer to the monastery.

The subcellerarius has to give an account of all the corn, rye and barley that is delivered in kind. We learn from his accounts that the convent consumed about 6 quarters of wheat per week, and that 520 quarters of barley were used during the year in making beer. An attempt is made in Appendix IV. to approximate on these data to the number of persons who lived at the convent.

The accounts of the elemosinarius are of much interest. His total receipts in the selected year were £88 15s. 1d. and vary but little. The chief item, £80 10s. 8d., comes, as in the case of other officials, from rents of land, houses and 'pensions,' dicto officio pertinentibus. Some of these were endowments given to perpetuate the memory of John Evesham, W. Mollens, T. Carter and R. Molton, by providing annual payments to members of the convent. It appears from one of the items in his receipts that he was lord of the manor of Icombe. The roll C. 200 (b), referred to above, furnishes full particulars of the income of this office.

His expenditure deserves analysis; after deducting the fixed charges of 22s. 9d., and the deductions in the next group amounting to 16s. 8d., the whole of the rest of his expenditure this year is either in the form of gifts to the poor, or of salaries and allowances to the members of the convent. It will be found that out of total net receipts of £86 17s. 11½d., £29 1s. 5d. is the sum given to the poor, and £57 16s. 6½d. is spent within the convent.

Other years show little variety. In C. 414 is an item pro renovatione vasorum in domo elemosinarii, 6s. 8d.; which shows that he had a separate house, or may refer to the almonry, a special building in which the poor men lived, and in which other poor men were fed. There is also an interesting item denarii soluti Johanni Wasshebourne generoso pro lite sedenda pro tilna (toll) de Ancredam nuper in discordia inter dominum priorem et predictum Johannem . . . 20s. The elemosinarius was lord of the manor of Ankerden.

There are other instances of arbitration referred to in these accounts. Thus on [p. 108], after an entry of a sum has been made, there is added the explanation—ut patet per arbitrium domini Abbatis Wynhecombe et Roberti Wye.

There is an item, such as that which follows, occurring frequently in the accounts of other years, which happens not to be represented in that of this year—pro pecuniis distributis pro obitu fratris Ricardi Lynsey morientis hoc anno 2s. 6d.

The magister capellæ appears from these accounts to have the charge of the Lady Chapel, and of the boys and novices of the convent, and to have a master under him. His income amounts to £26 14s. 8d. from houses and land, and there appears to be an endowment of 40s. founded by Bishop Alcock. His chief expenditure is on the salary of the Master, Daniel Boyse, and on the food and clothes, boots and slippers of the boys. There is no actual record of the number of the boys, unless it may be inferred from the first item in the stipendia that it was 14. Daniel Boyse held this post from this year till his death in 25-26 Henry VIII. He was probably a priest, as we may infer from the sacrist's account.

That the magister capellæ was in charge of the Lady Chapel and its service books appears probable from the standing items in his accounts, pro olio empto pro sustentatione unius lampadis pendentis in capelle Beate Marie, and, pro cera emptâ ad usum dicte capelle; and also from occasional items, such as [p. 202], pro factura duorum magnificat et unius misse de square note et alterius misse de quinque partibus una cum le prikinge ejusdem . . . 13s. 4d. [p. 267], pro le prykinge unius libri de priksonge ad usum officii hoc anno . . . 6s. 8d. item pro duobus antifonis . . . 3s. 4d.; and in C. 414, pro novis cantilenis emptis ad usum capelle. He also supplies the master with a 'surples.'

The Camerarius or Chamberlain is lord of the manor of Stoke and Cudston, and receives from all sources £66 10s. 6d. Of this sum 6s. 8d. is given to the poor, £8 16s. 6d. is spent on fixed fees and wages, £32 17s. 0d. is spent in payments to monks and other salaries; expenses and repairs amount to £5 10s. 4d. The special province of the Camerarius appears to be the provision of clothes for the monks, and on this is spent nearly the whole of the last group of items, £11 8s. 5d. Among his receipts a few years later (C. 415), we find, de proficuis vestimentorum fratris Willelmi Lynsyll morientis hoc anno una cum vestimentis Clementis Hartylbury, 12s. 8d. In these entries and in the entry in the account of the Elemosinarius just referred to, a record is preserved of the deaths of the monks.

It throws some light on the office of the Camerarius to quote here a few entries from other years, e.g. [p. 59], pro tribus desens<sup>1</sup> et uno quere de corves (leather), 24s.; pro ocriis et vampes emptis pro conventu, £3 2s. 0d. [p. 59], pro 24 virgatis panni vocati lyncy wyncey at 6d. per ell, 12s., pro panno lanio pro soccis et caligis inde fiendis; [p. 205] pro panno linio empto pro maundy clothis inde fiendis, and [p. 270], pro clausura unius sepiis cum le quicke sette apud sanctum Johannem . . . 6s. 1d., pro quatuor peciis de stamine largo . . . 60s., pro una pecia staminis stricti continenti xxx virgatas . . . 10s. He also possesses a house of his own, and has to repair its kitchen chimney.

The pitanciarius has an income of £53 15s. 10d.; a small part of this is spent on fixed payments, and repairs, and other working expenses; but the bulk of his income, £45 7s. 11d., provides allowances and stipends in money for the members of the convent. When a monk celebrates his first mass, the pitancer gives a special allowance of food to the convent, thus [p. 207]—pro pitancia data conventui pro Thoma Grymley celebrante primam missam hoc anno 2s. This entry also occurs in the accounts of other officials.

The importance in the convent of the office of Precentor must not be estimated by the relative magnitude of his official income.

<sup>1</sup> desens, perhaps dozens. ocriis et vampes, of short stockings or hose, which came up perhaps leggings and short leather 'spats.' only to the ancles"; also "the upper Bailey's Dictionary gives for vamps "a sort leather of a shoe."

He only receives £10 12s. 8d. per annum. In his expenditure, besides the £7 11s. 10d. which is spent within the convent in salaries, there are interesting items recurring every year in the form of payments to the Passionistri, or singers of the Passion Gospels in Lent, and to the special preachers in Lent, Advent, and on the Rogation Days. He pays them at the rate of 3s. 4d. for a sermon. The only other item that specially pertains to his office is for the repair of books in the choir.

In other years there is the allowance of 2s. to the convent whenever a monk celebrates his first mass; and in A.D. 1524-5 (C. 414) begins the solutum domino regi sibi per clerum concessum, 10s., item in denariis solutis domino cardinali, 18d.

The tumbarius has the charge of the tombs, with the income of £12 14s. 0d., and this is mainly expended on the candles burnt at the tombs. He appears to own property in St. Clement's and 'the Knowle,' and elsewhere in Worcester. The relics appear to have been carried round the cathedral or the city in a torchlight procession, for which the tumbarius was responsible.

In the previous year [p. 64] there are items, pro cera et clavis pro cista in quo Johannes Constacius episcopus jacet<sup>1</sup>; . . . 10d., item pro tribus ceris pendentibus ad pixides sanctorum Oswaldi et Wolstani . . . 12d.; and in 1524-5 he too is called on to pay increased sums to the king and cardinal.

The hostillarius comes next, with the small income of £8 2s. 0d.: this however is a total specially augmented hoc anno by the last two items amounting to £3 0s. 0d.

It will be seen from the facsimile opposite p. 26 that the name of Robert Alchurche, the subprior, was substituted for that of Clement Hartylbury at the last moment, after the account was drafted and partly filled in; for it is evident that the last two items were written in after the words Summa totalis recepte had been written. The expenditure is equally exceptional. It is perhaps reasonable to conjecture that Clement Hartylbury, who had this year accepted the office, wanted a new bed, but that his office did not provide him income enough to buy one; and that his friend the subprior stepped in, took the office, raised a special subscription for the purpose, cut off the usual payment to the fratres prædicatores et minores, and some other gifts, ran into debt a few shillings, supplied an excellent bed, and then retired from the office. We find Clement Hartylbury is the hostillarius for the three following years; and he continues to improve the accommodation of the hostelry or guesthouse. Besides the expenditure mentioned in the note, he buys in successive years 1 brushe, 2 ollas pro vino imponendo, a pulvinar or bolster, and 4 ollas de stanno, viz. "potell, quarte, pyte, and peny potte" . . . 4s. 5d.; another pair of linthiamina or sheets, and a 'curten de bokerham' emptum pro fenestra in camera hostillarii; and finally two 'fyre showlys' for 18d., and a 'chevyndishe' for 18d.

In the left-hand margin of the facsimile will be seen certain marks. Similar marks occur elsewhere. In the account of the subcellerarius, opposite the first 'Summa' [p. 118], they are in 5 columns, not 3 as in the facsimile; in [p. 119] opposite the 'Summa totalis' in 3 columns; in [p. 121] opposite the 'Summa totalis' in 4 or 5; and in other years in 3, 4, and 5 columns. I am not able to explain what they mean. They are known to be connected with the way of counting by chequers.

The magister communis cenæ has an income of £13 6s. 9d. The main items in his expenditure are the purchase in the city of beef for breakfast in the convent for 38 weeks at 15d. a week, and the cost of food for supper for 41 weeks, at 2s. 4d. a week. He is charged with the payment to his brethren for masses every week to be said in the Chapel of Saint George for the soul of Sir Thomas Lyttelton. He appears also to be in charge of the dovecotes.

The refectorarius is one of the less important officials. In successive years we have John Berowe, William Fordham (who is also cellerarius), William Wyche, and Thomas Hurbrugge. The income is only £2 12s. 6d. It is his duty to light the refectory, and to supply table-cloths and napkins, and other table requisites. There is little variation in his accounts; but in following years he buys 1 'pottell potte' for 14d., and pays pro emendacione lex aundyers in mia, (andirons in the misericordia), etc., 2s. 4d.; for tribus candelabris, 4s.; and duobus lampadibus cum cordulis, 5d.; pro renovatione trium salienum (probably saltcellars), 12*d.*, and pro uno coopertorio pro capho supprioris, 4*d.*, and the renewal of a 'bason' in the lavatory.

The infirmarius has an income of £13 13*s.* 0*d.* Payments within the convent absorb £7 16*s.* 10*d.*; and the special items connected with his office for food and other expenses incurred on behalf of the sick vary with their number, as indicated in the note. In the year preceding that for which the account is printed there were no such expenses. It is in his accounts that in each year we read of payments to le dandry et duobus deycis. These three are monks, since together with the 5 officials who precede them, and the 33 monks that follow, they make up the number 41, corresponding to the accounts of the pitancer, who gives allowances to subprior, precentor and 39 other monks. But who are the 'dandry' and the two 'deyces'?

The coquinarius has a very important post as provider of all the meat and fish—pro omnibus victualibus tam carniū quam piscium emptis septimanatim—consumed in the convent. His receipts from the estates assigned to him amount to £131 15*s.* 6*d.*; and this sum is considerably increased by the sale of hides, fat, dripping, &c., and by the profits of his own farms, and byres, and piggeries. The total amounts to £162 17*s.* 8*d.*

There are many interesting items in his expenditure; we learn that there was a magister tabulæ in refectorio, a larderer and other assistants. He gives pittance to the Passionistri, who gave help on Palm Sunday. He pays the stipends in whole or in part of many officers of the prior and the convent; of the generosi or esquires, the porter, groom, and valet de chambre of the prior, and several others. Two years later we note the additional item of 40*s.* to the king.

Then follows a statement of the cost of each week's supplies, varying from 42*s.* to £4 2*s.* 0*d.* at Christmas, and averaging £2 15*s.* 2*d.* The week is, generally speaking, defined by the first words of the introit for the Sunday. I do not know what the cost of meat was at that time; but if it is taken at  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb., this sum, if spent only on meat, would provide about 190 lbs. a day. Some specimens of the detailed weekly accounts of a coquinarius, shewing the cost, but not the quantity, of all the items supplied, is given in Appendix VI.

Finally, there is the sacrista. His total income is £168 5s. 6d.; and some of the items in his receipts are of special interest. What is meant by pro brasio de collectore cum cruce Sancti Wolstani hoc anno . . . 12s.? in the year following the amount thus raised is 13s. 10d. Brasium is brace or malt. The quadrantes Pentecoste, or Whitsun farthings, the profits Sigilli fraternitatis beatæ Mariæ, and the brevia, all call for further elucidation. The offerings of pilgrims in money and wax, and perhaps of cattle, are of large amount. The weight of wax given must have been about 13 cwt.

There are many items also in the expenditure that should be noted. Among the fixed payments, such as those to the Bishop and the Abbot of Bordesley, and allowances to members of the convent, we find items—pro portacione draconis<sup>1</sup> et vexillarum in septimana rogationis, and charges connected with the feast Corpus Christi, which show that processions were under the charge of the sacrist.

Then follows the large salary of £10 16s. 0d.—magistro Lewes magistro carnarie—probably the capella carnaria (charnel house); and salaries to many other officials; salaries to a capellanus, a subsacrista, three clerici ecclesiæ, two servants in the sacristy; to the caretaker of the bells, the cymbal in the cloister which sounded for meals, and the clock; and to the cocus sacriste and other officials. The sacrist was, therefore, the head of a considerable staff of ministrants in the cathedral.

He pays for the bread used in the mass—‘Syngynge bredd,’ and for the wine; for wax candles, oil, lamps, incense; for gloves for the convent, albs and other vestments; hangings for the altar; and in a word for all that is required for the services except the books. He pays the lathami or masons pro consummatione nove altaris vocati Jesus alter, £10 1s. 10d. In the only other sacrist’s account which is nearly contemporary, a sacrist pays pro ffrynges de cerico et satten de Brugges, etc. [286], £6 11s. 10d.; pro duobus calicibus, £8 11s. 0d.; pro uno schippe de argento et deaurato cum uno cochliario, £5 10s. 0d.; and he has the repairs of certain roofs, ubi magis indiget, in the cathedral, spending £24 8s. 0d. on lead alone, a sum which would purchase more than 4 tons. He has the repair of windows, paying vitriaribus pro sowder plumbo, etc. In the latest roll [1533-4],

Humphrey Webley is sacrist, and there is an item pro reparatione organorum in capella Beate Marie, £4 12s. 8d.

I have now indicated some of the chief points of interest in the separate accounts of the officials of the convent which are here printed, and I will add a few paragraphs on various matters arising out of the accounts, which may find here a more natural place than in either notes or appendices.

For example, a few notes on prices obtained from the records of this period may be interesting. Barley is at 5s. 4d. a quarter; wheat at 4s. 4d., 5s., 6s. 8d., 8s. a quarter. If we consider that a man consumes about 1 quarter of wheat in a year, and take the cost of 1 quarter of wheat at 6s. and of the bread that is made from it at 12s., it appears that the cost of bread for a man for a day is about  $\frac{2}{3}$ d.; cattle (boves), are at about 10s., but elsewhere 2 boves and 1 vacca, who died ex morina (of a murrain), are counted as worth 36s. 8d., and the optimum animal bovem coloris rubii taken as a heriott was worth 12s. A hogshead of claret is 24s. 6d. A lb. of almonds is 1½d.; of rice, 1d. A 'lyttel black ambling horse' (Prior's Journal, fol. 50), 14s. 7d. A grey horse, 20s.; others from 16s. 0d. to 28s. 8d. A cart, 22s. Lead, 5s. 8d. a cwt. 'Brussell' carpet, 8d. an ell. Dyeper, 4d. and 6d. an ell. An alb is 4s. 7d.; wax is 8d. a lb.

The names of various streets and localities in Worcester occur in these accounts, and it may interest local antiquaries to see a list of them. Besides the altus vicus, or High St., and latus vicus, or 'brode' St., we find Gosethorne Strete, ffrogmylle lane, Wodstaffe (or Woddestaffe) St., Hylton St., Byrteporte, Keyen Strete, Eporte, Cokenstrete, Greyfrers St., le Melechoppynge, Banhams-vyne, Busshopstrete, Knowle yende, fforagate St., barreyate, rotten-rewe, crepulgate, Newport, le Archard, Crokebarowe hylle, and Sudbrugge. The number might be considerably increased from the documents in class B.

The sums mentioned in these abstracts as spent outside the convent, in the manors belonging to the convent, are small. We read of the repairs of the chancel of Stoke Church, 13s., of a bridge near the forest of Feckenham, 2s. 4d., and of another, vocati Knightsforde Brugge [265], 100s., of pavement in St. Clement's, 7s., of the glass in a window of the chancel of Cropthorne Church, and a few similar items. But it must be noted that it is not to these abstracts that we should look for such payments, but to the accounts of the bailiffs of the manors with which this introduction does not deal. Thus in the accounts [pp. 22, 23] of the bailiff and collector of Tedynton, the gross rents are £32 12s. 5d., but among the deductions from this are, in denariis solutis duobus capellanis de Tedynton et Alvston pro stipendiis eorum £6 13s. 4d. So in the accounts for Worcester there are payments, super preceptorem S. Wolstani, to the prior minoris Malverni, and super preceptorem S. Oswaldi, before the balance is paid into the hands of the prior and cellerarius.

I do not know whether from any source the dedications of all the altars in the Cathedral are known. In these accounts may be noted nine altars, Nomine Jesu, Beate Marie, S. Johannis Baptistæ, S. Stephani, S. Oswaldi, S. Wolstani, S. Cecilie, S. Georgii, and S. Edmundi. But there were others besides these.

A few words should be said on the principles which I have endeavoured to follow in the transcriptions. They will be best understood by reference to the facsimile opposite p. 26.

There is no doubt that the recognised contractions, such as occur in prædictum and in quia and primus in the first two lines, should be fully expanded for the convenience of the reader. The doubt and difficulty arises as to the inflections and case endings which are usually omitted, and as to often recurring symbols which barely suggest the words they are known by experience to stand for. The word compus. or comput. in the first two lines, and in the first lines of the two later paragraphs, will serve as an illustration. Any inflection of the verb computo, or its participles, or of the substantives computus and computator, may be intended. To some extent the completion is conjectural, but it is often determined by reference to other documents where it is less contracted. For example, the comput. in the second line is sometimes found as computant. suggesting computantis.

Another doubt and difficulty is illustrated by the first two words of the third line. The letters s and r are the only letters decipherable. Do they stand for Summa receptæ, or Summa reddituum, or for some other words? They are found, by reference to other documents, to stand for Sed respondet.

Other words can only be transcribed by comparison with parallel passages. For example, the fourth word from the end of line 4 in the last paragraph can only be read as predicatorum from its constant association with minorum, sometimes in expanded forms.

The use of capitals is not consistent ; for example, Officii in the last paragraph occurs both with capital letter and without it. I have not, therefore, been scrupulous to copy capitals.

Finally, I wish to acknowledge my obligations to the general editor of these transactions for advice as to the proofs, and infinite patience with my corrections, and further obligations, which I cannot overrate, to the Dean of Westminster (Dr. J. Armitage Robinson), and to the Rev. R. R. Rackham, for comparing the whole of the transcript with the original, and correcting, by their wide experience, several systematic errors into which as a beginner I had fallen, and some other blunders which would have disfigured these pages but for their most kind, prolonged, and efficient help.

I have also to thank Mr. I. H. Jeayes, of the Department of Manuscripts of the British Museum, for revising my transcript of the roll given in Appendix VI., and for some notes upon it which I have embodied.

It is hoped that some further selections may be published from this interesting collection of documents relating to the Priory of Worcester.

of Charter rolls, vol. i., p. 114, there is a summary of a grant to John of Monmouth and his heirs, of the forest of Trivel (diocese of Hereford) with the lands and growth (vestura) of the said forest. "It seems to be a Latinized form of Weax-nas (from Anglo-Saxon weax-an, to grow) = increase growth."

Et sic predictus dominus prior gerens officium cellerarii hoc anno recessit—quietus<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> It appears that the prior assumed the office of cellerarius, and his receipts of £455 15s. 10½d. Out of this he paid the charges £426 2s. 3½d., and the sum of £6 13s. 4d. to the king, and this left him £23 0s. 2½½d. due to the cellerarius. This he paid; and the receipt is indicated by the word quietus.

<sup>3</sup> This is a side note. It is of great interest, but not quite clear. Does it mean that these sums had been paid to the king? The cellarer appears to act as treasurer. In April, 1524, a visitation was held by the lord legate, Thomas, Cardinal and Archbishop, and the monastery agreed to pay £40 to the surrogate commissary in London in 3 annual instalments. See Noake, The Worcester Monastery, p. 218.

hoc anno videlicet domino priori £20 thesaurario nostro £120 et Roberto Alchurche suppriori £20.

<sup>1</sup> Robert Alchurche, as we learn from William More's journal, is made in the year 1522 to take an oath to render his account to the Bishop and not to the Prior.

We learn from Noake that he was one of those before whom William Smyth, alias

Peynter, of Ombersley, was tried for heresy on July 11, 1511. (Noake, p. 210.)

MANOR OF BRADWAS.

THE same volume of accounts contains four summaries of the payments made both in grain and in money from some of the manors. They are apparently not complete accounts of the income of the monastery, as the total payments do not equal the rents received. The list that follows gives the gross payments from a series of manors, from which, however, some deductions were made for expenses of collecting, and under other heads. Besides these payments in money there are payments in kind. One specimen of the accounts presented will suffice, that of Bradwas, an adjacent manor, for the year 12-13 Henry VIII. The payments are made not to the convent as a whole or to its treasurer, but divided between certain officials: some divided between the prior and the cellerarius, or between the cellerarius, camerarius and coquinaris, or among other officials.

THE ADVENT ANTIPHONS.

OF the Advent antiphons 6 are mentioned in this year's accounts. They are O Sapientia, O Adonai, O Radix Jesse, O Oriens, O Emmanuel, and O Virgo Virginum. There is no mention of the O Clavis David, or of the O Rex Gentium.

For the O Sapientia the prior gives to the magister Communis Cenæ for the convent 6s. 8d. For the O Adonai the precentor gives 10s. to the pitancer, and 6s. 8d. to the convent (pro jantaculo), 4s. to the prior, 3s. 10d. to the sub-prior, 3s. 10d. to himself, and to each of the other monks (39) 2s. For the O Radix Jesse the Coquinarius gives to the convent 6s. 8d. For the O Oriens the Sacrist gives the same. For the O Emmanuel the Elemosynarius gives to the convent 6s. 8d.; and the Camerarius gives to the magister Communis Cenæ for the convent 6s. 8d., to the precentor 2s., and to each of the other monks (37) 1s. For the O Virgo Virginum the Pitansarius gives to the prior 8s., to the sub-prior 4s. 6d., to the precentor 4s., and to each of the other monks (39) 3s.; and he gives to the convent 6s. 8d. Also the Coquinarius gives to the pitancer 10s.

These antiphons were sung at magnificat in vespers in the octave beginning Dec. 16. One may be given in full from Blunt's "Annotated Book of Common Prayer," 4th S. in Advent.

O Sapientia quæ ex ore Altissimi prodisti attingens a fine usque ad finem, fortiter suaviterque disponens omnia: veni ad docendum nos viam prudentiæ.

Five of these antiphons were embodied in a Latin Hymn, Veni, Veni, Emmanuel (Thesaurus Hymnologicus, Daniel, vol. ii. p. 336), which is familiar in its English form as Hymn 49 in 'Hymns Ancient and Modern.' Seven of them are given in 'Church Hymns,' No. 74, 'O Wisdom who on earth below.'

It may be mentioned that in cellerarius roll (C. 105) of 11-12 Henry VII., he pays to the Prior and Convent £6 14s. 0d. for the O Clavis David: and in the Worcester Register the Magister operum facit O Rex Gentium (p. 99 b).

THE PRIOR'S MITRE AND STAFF.

IT is worth while to print an extract from the Journal of William More the Prior, which gives an exact account of this new mitre. This 'Jornale' or Diary is preserved in the Library of Worcester Cathedral. It has not been published in extenso, but was very largely used by Alderman Noake, and all subsequent writers. Noake gives a copy, not quite correct, of the extract given below.

The following is an exact copy of the entry on fol. 61. It is for the year A.D. 1522 Ebdomada xi.

ON THE NUMBER OF PERSONS IN THE CONVENTUAL ESTABLISHMENT.

THERE is no direct evidence obtainable as to the number of servants engaged in all the varied occupations that gathered round a great establishment. It is known from the complaint made to the lord Visitor a few years later by John Musard, one of the monks (Noake, p. 199), that the Prior had 33 servants. There must have been servants for the Church, the infirmary, the cellar, the kitchen, the brewhouse, the bakehouse, the stables, the wood yard, cowsheds and pigsties; men engaged as artizans, butchers, fishermen, carriers, carters, besides body servants, gardeners, porters, tailors, and others; and many of these doubtless received food in the monastery.

But we can form some indirect estimate from the amount of wheat consumed as bread, and of barley consumed as beer.

The total quantity of wheat consumed in the establishment in the year A.D. 1522 was 341 quarters 1 bushel. In the following years it was 345 quarters 3 bushels, and 344 quarters 7 bushels.

Now Mr. Burden, of Worcester, informs me that 1 quarter of wheat makes 372 lbs. of flour, and 480 lbs. of bread. This estimate is exactly confirmed by Mr. Hughes, also of Worcester, and both these gentlemen speak with knowledge. The allowance of bread to our soldiers is 1 lb. a day. Ordinary household consumption is somewhat less. But in households where bread is the main article of diet it is more. From the very carefully compiled tables of diet given in the "Report on Housing and Industrial conditions in Dundee" (John Lang, Dundee, 1905), it may be inferred that the consumption of bread in such households is on the average between 8 and 9 lbs. a week per man, or about  $1\frac{1}{4}$  lbs., and in some few instances largely exceeding this, reaching even 2 lbs. a day. Perhaps  $1\frac{1}{4}$  lbs. is a fair allowance, or at the outside  $1\frac{1}{2}$  lbs. per man. Now the average consumption is about 450 lbs. a day; and this indicates an establishment of 360 persons, or at least 300.

The estimate from the consumption of beer is more precarious. It appears that 520 quarters of barley were used for brewing in this year, and in the two subsequent years.

Now Mr. Spreckley, of Worcester, writes that in his opinion "about 7,632 gallons of strong ale would be brewed from 100 quarters of malt in those days; but if they brewed a weak ale as was done for servants and labourers in country houses, double might be made of it." The consumption of beer, therefore, was from 40,000 to 80,000 gallons a year, according to its strength, or from 110 to 220 gallons a day. Messrs. Allsopp's estimate is from 56,160 to 93,600 gallons per annum, or from 150 to 250 gallons a day. If we assume that it was 'small beer,' and that the consumption was 200 gallons a day, this would give to each member of the establishment as above calculated from 2 to 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  quarts a day. When we remember that they drank no tea or coffee or mineral waters, and that little mention is made of milk, this is not excessive.

We may conclude with some probability that the number of persons fed in the monastery was from 300 to 350 at this period.

It will be interesting to compare this with a list of the Evesham Community (A.D. 1086—1096) which has been preserved and printed in "St. Egwin and his Abbey of Evesham," by the Benedictine Convent of Stanbrook, Worcester, 1904. This list gives the number of monks as 67, twelve of whom were in Denmark. Besides these there were five nuns, three poor people, 'ad mandatum,' and three clerics. All these received the same portions as the monks themselves. There was a large number of servants, 63 in all; five for the church, two for the infirmary, two for the cellar, five for the kitchen, seven for the bakehouse, four for the brewing, six for the baths, two tailors, two orchard keepers, three gardeners, one porter at the cloister gate, two at the great gate, five in the vineyard, four to attend on the monks when they went out, four fishermen, four servants for the abbot's rooms, three in the hall, and lastly three watchmen, p. 7.

It is certain that the proportion of servants to monks had considerably increased between the 11th century and the 16th.

ACCOUNTS OF THE COQUINARIUS.

THE list of weekly expenses printed in the text, p. 35, recurs in the same form in the accounts of three other years. The lists are identical as regards the names given to the week, and all begin with the 15th Sunday after Pentecost, though the day of the year on which their Sunday fell must have varied. Moreover, they all agree in omitting the 16th, 18th and 19th Sundays after Pentecost; and in inserting in their places the introits for the three days from the Ember week in September. The Sundays are described by the first word or words of the Introit of the day's mass, which is usually taken from a Psalm. The 3 omitted Sundays are Miserere mihi, Da pacem, and Salus populi.

It may assist in identifying the Sundays in the printed list to add that Ad te levavi is the first Sunday in Advent; Puer Natus is Christmas Day; Invocabit, the first Sunday in Lent; Resurrexi, Easter Day, and Spiritus Domini, Pentecost.

Besides the abstract, or total for the week, the Coquinarius appears to have submitted a roll giving details for every day in the year. We have no such contemporary roll; but it will be interesting to see the following specimen weeks of a roll (C. 169), which probably belongs to 13-14 Edward III. [A.D. 1340, 1].

I acknowledge gratefully my obligations to Mr. I. H. Jeayes of the Department of MSS. in the British Museum for revising and correcting my transcript of this roll, and for adding some notes.

OFFICIUM HORDARII.

MEMORANDUM quod ffrater J. de Merlawe recepit de officio hordarii anno xxix<sup>o</sup> præter £17 10s. 4d. quos R. Clericus sibi liberavit unde idem frater J. non oneratur ut patet alibi £325 10s. 9½d.

Summa £325 10s. 9½d.

De qua quidem summa predictus ffrater J. computat expendisse predicto anno xxix<sup>o</sup> £314 7s. 4½d. et sic excedit recepta expensas de £11 3s. 5d. Unde item frater J. tenetur respondere domino priori.

Item dictus ffrater J. recepit de officio hordarii anno xxx<sup>mo</sup> £331 0s. 19½d. unde expendit eodem anno xxx<sup>mo</sup> £280 7s. 9½d. Et sic excedit recepta expensas £50 13s. 9½d. unde tenetur respondere domino priori.

Item dictus ffrater J. recepit de officio predicto anno xxxi<sup>o</sup> £313 18s. 4½d. de qua quidem summa computat expendisse eodem xxxi<sup>o</sup> anno £286 10s. 0d. et sic excedit recepta expensas de £27 17s. 6½d. unde tenetur respondere domino priori.

Item dictus ffrater J. recepit de officio hordarii anno xxxii<sup>o</sup> £332 7s. 6½d. de qua quidem summa computat expendisse eodem xxxii<sup>o</sup> anno £284 13s. 10d. et sic excedit recepta expensas de £47 13s. 8½d. unde tenetur respondere domino priori.

Item dictus ffrater J. recepit de officio hordarii anno xxxiiii<sup>o</sup> præter 60s. quos R. Clericus sibi liberavit £293 17s. 0½d. de qua quidem summa computat expendisse eodem xxxiiii<sup>o</sup> anno £267 9s. 9d. et sic excedit recepta expensas de £26 3s. 3½d. unde tenetur respondere domino priori.

Item dictus ffrater J. recepit de officio hordarii anno xxxv<sup>o</sup>

Item dictus ffrater J. recepit de officio hordarii anno xxxvi<sup>to</sup> £289 15s. 3½ ¼d. de qua quidem summa computat expendisse in eodem xxxvi<sup>to</sup> anno. £268 15s. 8½d. et sic excedit recepta expensas de £20 19s. 7½d. unde tenetur respondere domino priori.

On the back

Summa denariorum unde predictus ffrater J. non oneratur, et de quibus respondere tenetur domino priori de proficuis acrescentibus de officio hordarie pro 8 annis infra scriptis £223 17s. 5½d.

Item tenetur respondere domino priori de soluto per dominum priorem pro instauratione emenda ad officium Camerarii instaurandum. De qua quidem summa predictus ffrater J. cepit allocationem.

Note. — The sum of the 8 balances, £11 3s. 5d. . . . to £20 19s. 7½d. is £223 17s. 5½d.

Dean Kitchin, to whom I sent this transcript, confirms my belief that this is a Winchester Roll, which has somehow got into the collection at Worcester. He writes, Oct. 31, 1907, "Apparently the title of Hordarius is not known to have existed elsewhere than at St. Swithun's, Winchester. If so it follows that this interesting summary roll you have sent me was one of the Winchester series: and it seems likely as (1) the date suits the Winchester Hordarian J. Marlowe, or Merlowe, or Merlawe. For our J. Merlawe was Receiver and Hordarius there from 1330. It was in his hands as Receiver of the Prior till 1337. He was afterwards Prior himself. (2) One of the figures of your MS. for anno xxx<sup>o</sup> answers exactly to the Winchester Roll of 1330. (See Obedientary Rolls of St. Swithun's, Winchester, Hampshire Record Society, by Dean Kitchin, p. 260).

Summa £331 os. 19d. The other sums are about the same, but not exactly so."

[It may be noted that the correct addition of the items on p. 260 gives the additional farthing, £331 os. 19½d., and makes the agreement of the two totals accurate.]

It is plain therefore that anno xxxo means A.D. 1330.*

Another roll of rental and accounts of an estate at Thormond has been found among our rolls. The roll is dated A.D. 1343, the 16th year of Prior Alexander. It also is plainly a Winchester roll.

The Dean and Chapter of Worcester have presented these rolls to the Dean and Chapter of Winchester.
